

CO PIES NA TO? blog is a perfect place for everyone looking for hints and information on life with dogs. Since May 2015 we have been writing about dog world and the importance of dog-human relationship. Our posts are based on scientific knowledge and our own experience. We publish on a regular basis and managed to build and develop a strong community around the blog, as well as in the social media.

Our top priority is the educational value of the articles published on the blog. By adding some anecdotes about our dogs, Odi and Vesper, we try to show that dog-human relationship and the unique bond that ties the two species together is something very special. We believe that the blog has an indirect, positive influence on dogs' quality of life.
